by Professor Anthony Carty:

Can the International Lawyer Aspire to be a Philosopher or an Intellectual?

- Venue* *University of Helsinki, Porthania, Faculty Meeting Room P545
Yliopistonkatu 3*
- Time* 7 April 2011 at 14.00 - 16.00
- Note* Participants are encouraged to read the following article prior to talk:
“On the Relational Aesthetics of International Law:
Philosophy of International Law, Anthony Carty” by Peter Goodrich
(Journal of the History of International Law 10 (2008) 321–341)

Anthony Carty is the holder of the Sir Y K Pao Chair in Public Law at the Faculty of Law of the University of Hong Kong, presently on leave of absence as the Chair of Public Law from the University of Aberdeen. Professor Carty studied law at Queen's University Belfast, London, and Cambridge. He has a long and sustained interest in public international law, international legal history and the history of legal ideas. Known as a critical voice in the discipline, Professor Carty has approached the study of international law from a sociological, philosophical, historical, cultural and practical perspective. He has written on European, German, French, and British perspectives of international law as well as across autonomous regions inside states such as Scotland and the Basque country. Carty is also interested in the role of lawyers in foreign policy and is about to complete a study on the legal advisers to the British Foreign Office covering the period from 1945 to 1961.
